

Sion Fullana

Being a black and white photo having people in it really makes it unique and abstract like time has stopped.

I like this photo because the sunset really brings out the sky and it is the first thing I looked at in the picture!

This photo is on a grey scale/ its black and white, usually people think all pictures should be in colour but it doesn't actually have to be in full colour to be effective!

All of Sion's photo's are all black and white and he wants to catch the raw reality of New York City!